Dean Snowden Fights For Freedom

Leads Violent Coup D'Etat

ET TU FRANKUS? An ousted member of the old regime looks sorrowfully at the cold, cruel she has to face under the hand of the new leader, "Delightful Dean Snowden."

Ace Reporter Gets First Hand Account of Vietnam Treaty

The HILLTOP'S ace reporter Blind Bartholemew tickertaped in a hot news story this morning. According to Barth, the war in Vietnam or Nova Scotia is over or done.

The whole thing as he says it occurred when James M. Nabrit (or Mao Tse Tung) said "Stop the bombs" or "Start the peace."

News Briefs

Fall Falls

Bernard Fall has fallen.

Ten thousand students have been expelled from the University. Administration efficiency has struck again; only 9,999 students registered.

Some teacher was caught teaching and was immediately mobbed by eager students. Unfortunately the prof. was immediately dismissed from the University for overdoing it.

Fifteen women students were caught in "questionable circumstances" in the men's dorm last night. They claimed to be only selling Girl Scout cookies but Dean Calhoun who revealed that she "weren't born yesterday" didn't buy their story and took the cookies away.

A book was found for student in record time last month: 15 minutes. In the library; of course, the book was on the floor under the library worker's foot.

50% of the men in Drew Hall are heterosexual according to some reports.

In an effort to establish friendly relations with the blocks (whom the HILLTOP has been told do not exist) the Campus Optimists Club has inaugurated

Barth is not sure; he lost his hearing aid looking for his seeing eye dog.

He's almost sure, however that it was Nabrit who delivered a rousing peace speech in the middle of a battle field on Georgia Avenue or Saigon. Glib Nabrit, said Barth, who is handily a lip reader, promised food and fun at his penthouse (or was it tea-house?) in Japan (or France). Then (or twodayslater) the fighting stopped and the Vietcong and the Zulus, or whoever Barth saw fighting sat down for a long talk in a language that the hearing aid could not translate. THAT an athletic program for inter-group therapy. All the bats were broken at the last meeting and the Howard students' skulls crushed. Accidents will happen.

A million Harvard men have transferred to Howard to integrate; but they dropped out because they could not pass remedial math, freshman orientation or the burning sands.

The monkeys have fallen off the wall in front of the quad.

part of the story will have to remain ambiguous.

Barth is pretty sure that the terms of the treaty have been settled or are at least about to be settled. The dividing line between North and South Vietnam will be the 53rd parallel or the 35th. Some type of government will be set up in South Vietnam with somebody heading it. Some man with a bald head and clothed in sack cloth may take over, or some girl with big feet.

Since the facts on the new government are so clear and everyone knows all about who settled it, this is ace reporter Barth the Blind Boy Wonder signing off.

Oh, one more thing. The fighting started all over again at lunch. Or was it during cocktails? Anyway, some American Soldier (or some Vietnamese student) refused or couldn't smoke the peace pipe that was being passed around. (I knew it was a peace pipe because I could smell the smoke). Well the fighting has started again and I have been either stabbed or shot in the leg (or arm) and sooner or later am going to see a doctor or a cook about getting fixed or eating.

"Regurgitate to the maximal height the falanges of your upper appendages. Dean Frank Snowden has led the Howard students and faculty to a state of Shacklessness," shouted one of Snowden's disciples in the burning of the rules held on the main campus yesterday.

The "coup d'etat" began last semester when Dean Snowden battled the rest of the administration to establish free speech in the faculty meetings. Snowden, whose motto has always been "I can certainly learn from the logical analysis and original suggestions of the faculty, my colleagues, my equals in intelligence, my friends," always encouraged the faculty members who were brimming over with well-thought-out plans and ideas, to express themselves and most of all to disagree with him whenever they were so inclined. But the reactionary elements in the administration squelched him every time.

Jealousy raged against the Dean because he was one of the few "people at the top" who was overheard saying, "The students will surely come up with some fine committees to improve the few unfavorable conditions that exist at Howard; I can't wait to meet with them." Well once again, the conservative elements tried to suppress his efforts. To retaliate, and to mark the birth of the freedom movement, Snowden founded SAF, Striving for Administrative Fairness, and welcomed such libertines as Benny Pugh, advocate of a strong Student Council; Edna M. Calhoun, who is tired of "keeping our women students down"; and Security Guard Ruffin (the strength of the military would be invaluable) to organize what he hoped would be a campus-wide organization.

Branded Communists by President Nabrit and deprived of possible promotion to "Delightful Dean" instead of just Dean, Snowden was undaunted. In fact he was unafraid.

Action toward the unpeaceful overthrow of the administration began in earnest when they maneuvered a position in the UN for President Nabrit to get him out of the way. Then Snowden began arousing the students with promises that "we shall utilize the talents of all people to the fullest; athletics, as the Greeks well knew, are a vital part of the life of all. Let there be athletic scholarships!" The conservatives, seeing the handwriting on the wall, made frantic attempts to hold sym-posiur's to "educate the students before it is too late" (Dr. Barnes). But Snowden was on the move.

The last act before the final and victorious thrust was the inauguration of student evaluation of teachers and teacher evaluation of students. It was a worthy project--the battle was on.

The bloody details of the war are too vile for the reader, who is no doubt already quivering with joy at the idea of "Delightful Dean Snowden" bringing democracy to Howard. However, it should be warned that several bodies of resisting old-regimers are strewn on the "A" building steps as a result of their being literally thrown out by the frenzied mob.

Snowden, who has added a modest proposal that he be called Caesar, in commenting on the momentousness of the coup remarked, "Greek gods everywhere are extending their larynx housed vocal chords with unmitigated mirth--democracy let it ring throughout the earth."

Negroness Not Cause Of Trouble

An exchange student from one of the "white" universities had the nerve to suggest at a party last week-end that the woes of Howard are not caused by its being predominantly Negro.

The party at which everyone was sober, thereby necessitating conversation about school, was a real flop.

At any rate this student suggested that Howard's problems lay in the poor quality of its student leaders whom he claims are not interested in intellectual activities or in attacking important problems such as the final exam mis-scheduling.

Audaciously, he claimed that the student elections were held in social club meetings and the voters at the committee choosing ceremonies are members of the "group." The reporter on the scene even overheard him say that the majority of the non-club member student body did not protest by voting and nominating independently.

A more perceptive and reasonable student, groomed in the Howard way, lifted his voice in a Howard love song and proclaimed that "if the students who are leading didn't lead we would have no leaders at all." The exchange student's retort was that "such a situation may be better than the muddle of 'color queens' 'popularity polls', and 'disinterested committee men.'"

Restrained by the other members of the group from slapping the blasphemous "whitey" the old Howard man stuck to his claim and added, "just name one person who is not a member of my club and I'll show you a non-popular out-of-it dude who has nothing to say about anything." He fainted from exhaustion; that was the most leading he had done for three years he later told the reporter.

News Briefs

The American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages of the United States, Inc. will hold its spring gathering tonight at 7:30 in the Home Economics Auditorium. The program will feature songs, sketches and poetry reading and will include participants from Georgetown, American, Maryland and Howard University. The public is invited.

All girls interested in working with the Association of Women Students on Mothers' Weekend, May 7-9, should contact Audrey Brodie in room 212, Wheatley Hall, Box 311 or telephone DU 7-9847. There are vacancies on the following committees: Who's Who, Registration, Luncheon, Fashion Show, Panel Discussion, Reception, Chapel and Publicity. All applicants should list their name, address, box number or telephone, and the committee for which they are volunteering.

Assembly Speaker Hernandez Stresses Equal Employment

Mrs. Aileen Clark Hernandez, Commissioner of Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was the speaker in a recent Freshman Assembly.

Dean Frank Snowden, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, introduced Mrs. Hernandez who was one of his students when she attended Howard, and in his words, was "one of the best Greek students I have ever had in my thirty years of teaching!" Mrs. Hernandez opened with a comparison of Howard when she attended and Howard of today. She encouraged students to participate, learn, understand and aspire to new horizons that were unavailable to Negroes during her college career. Mrs. Hernandez also spoke about the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, its functions and operations. After her speech a period was allotted for questions from the audience.

Magna Cum Laude graduate of Howard University, Mrs. Hernandez has occupied a number of outstanding positions. She was Assistant Chief of the Division of Fair Employment Practices of California, Education and Public Relations Director for Interna-

Dr. Emmett J. Rice, Acting Director of the Office of Developing Nations, is appealing to Howard University graduates to "come aboard the Treasury Department Bandwagon."

Representatives from the Department will be on campus to conduct recruitment interviews Monday beginning at 9 a.m.

The Treasury Department urges Howardites to "avail themselves of the equal opportunities" and to "carefully consider all the benefits of career Federal employment along with other job prospects before reaching a decision on employment."

The interviews will be held in the Office of Graduate Placement.

C.U. Seeking Outburst Remedy

Can students, faculty and administration jointly discover an alternative, that can be applied nationally, to outbursts of campus conflict? Students at The Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. believe that they can and have invited all leadership elements of the campus to take part in a two-day "Leadership Dialogue" on Saturday, April 2 and Sunday, April 3.

About 200 heads of student organizations, fraternity and sorority presidents, members of student councils, deans, department heads, administrators, and the Rector of the University, The Most Reverend William J. McDonald, will engage in intensive, candid conversations. Observers from other universities will be

Mrs. Madlyn Murray O'Hair, an atheist and the initiator of the suit resulting in the U.S. Supreme Court decision (1963) on Bible reading and prayer in public schools, will be featured in a panel discussion on the Church-State Crisis Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Cramton Auditorium.

Other members of the panel will be Dr. Robert Morey, attorney and writer from New York; Rev. Dale Crowley, director of the "Right Start for the Day" radio broadcast; and Mrs. Linda Blumenthal of the Department of Philosophy here at Howard.

Mrs. O'Hair (widely known as Madlyn Murray) has recently participated in similar forums at Harvard University, U.C.L.A., University of Boston, Rice University, University of Illinois and Loyola University in Chicago.

Mrs. O'Hair studied law at Ohio Northern University and South Texas College. She is publisher of the AMERICAN ATHEIST and founder of the Free Thought Society of America Inc., Other Americans Inc., and the Separationist Movement.

Says Mrs. O'Hair "We play to standing room only, and every radio and T.V. station usually covers it for local consumption."

Dr. Morey, who has published numerous articles on the psychological and legal foundations of democracy, will represent legal interpretations of Church-State relations. He will aim to present, "what the law is on the subject," as well as the reasons for these legal positions.

"The man who controls your thoughts must be kept separate from the man who controls your muscles," says Dr. Morey. "The church must be kept separate from the state, or you will be a slave."

Dr. Crowley, who launched his radio ministry in 1941, conducts 19 Gospel services over the air in the greater Washington area weekly. He edits the CAPITAL VOICE, a monthly religious newspaper which is distributed all over the United States and in several foreign countries.

Sophs Add Variety Show

The annual Sprung Madness activities will take place the week of May 9. This year they will include the usual Line of Dimes, the "Sick-o-limp-ick" games, the Ugly Man, Ugly Beauty and Ugly Pair Contest, a Marathon Dance, a movie and a concert.

A new addition this year will be a variety show sponsored by the liberal arts sophomore class.

Elections were held on March 21, in the Penthouse Auditorium, for the officers of the Steering Committee. Alfred Babington-Johnson was elected chairman with Bobbie Graves as vice-chairman and Alicia Grace, secretary.

The proceeds from these activities will go to the Campus Community Chest.

invited; attendance is by invitation only.

Charles Gill, a 1964 graduate of The Catholic University of America's Columbus School of Law, will deliver the Leadership Banquet Address, on Saturday, April 2, at 5:45 p.m. in the Social Center. He was chosen for his experience, just out of law school, in the revolutionary, legal-aid-to-the-poor program in New Haven Conn.

According to Time Magazine, (Nov. 12, 1965) the program was assailed as "socialized law" by traditionalists, afraid of cheapening the legal profession by putting it in a storefront and soliciting business. The program has since been warmly endorsed by the Connecticut Bar Association, and other legal authorities.

The C.U. students have asked Mr. Gill to relate his experience in leading the way "under fire" in a forward area of social and legal reform, to their responsibilities of campus leadership in controversial areas within and without the university. He was also asked to discuss whether the present turbulent campus leadership develops the kind of responsible leaders who effectively promote social advance in their later careers --- "Are they the ones who do the shouting while others do the shooting?"

The Leadership Dialogue was organized by the student leaders themselves to "provide an atmosphere in which administration, faculty and student leaders may exchange ideas on campus leadership and current problems affecting it," according to Ed Grace, Student Leadership Dialogue Coordinator. He said, "We believe that we have a unique opportunity to prove to the people of our nation that student leaders, and the student leaders of our university, in particular, are sincerely interested in responsible leadership and are more than willing to seek the means to achieve a joint spirit of cooperation and understanding with our faculty and administration."

LASC CONVENTION

The LASC Nominating convention will be held next Wednesday, April 6 from 12 noon until 1 o'clock in the Penthouse Auditorium of the Student Center. Applications will be accepted until 5 p.m. in the LASC office. Prospective candidates are asked to check academic requirements for the various offices prior to the convention.

Miss Monteith Among Coeds At L. A. Exhibit

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31 -- The colorful Colombian ruana, a wrap-around cape for women, will share the spotlight with three Washington co-eds at an artisan reception here Sunday, (April 3)

Dr. Eduardo Uribe, Colombian ambassador to the United States, will present ruanas to these three fashion contest winners;

Alicia Belluati, a sophomore education major at George Washington University and recent queen of that school's International Night; Diane Monteith, a junior home economics major at Howard University and the school's Glamor magazine winner; Sally Frame, an American University senior and AU's "Best Dressed Co-ed" winner.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Alianza Artisans, the reception will be held in the Virginia

Room of the Sheraton Park Hotel at 3:30 p.m. It is being staged as a project of Dr. S. M. Vinocour's Public Relations Overseas class at American University.

The purpose of the exhibit is to display the work of Colombian and other Latin American artisans. Their products are offered to North Americans by the Co-operative League of the USA under contract with the Agency for International Development. The project is done in cooperation with the Alliance for Progress.

An exhibit for Alianza handicrafts, including ceramics, leather goods, and wearing apparel each with its own distinctive design and colorings, will also be shown at the reception.

Cultural Strip Raided

For the first time in Howard's history, the Cultural was raided by the Washington police.

The Jose Iglesias Exotic Dance Troop was booked for the program. Mr. Butcher, who is in charge of the Cultural Series, stated with a sly smile, "we needed a show in a hurry and there simply wasn't enough time to review the group."

At the beginning of the performance all was quiet. The curtain went up, and "rollicking rainbow", who should come shak-

Next came Tito and Sweeto Muntaca (shown above). After their display, there was no containing the Howard males. They wildly charged towards the platform, grabbing and clawing at the dancers. Within ten minutes, the police arrived.

Three thousand students philly dogging down George Ave. towards the 13th precinct made quite a spectacle.

NIGGers Meet, Eat Pigs Feet, Bleach Team Can't Be Beat

the passing of the new civil rights bill, those Puerto Ricans were simply forgetting their place "those foreigners!"

The motion was carried unanimously. President Thomas closed the meeting with a prayer and led the group in the NIGGER alma mater, "I'm Almost White, So Everything's All Right, Baby."

NIGG's - preparing to eat lunch, members of NIGG convention talk over old times in dining room. These are the members of the NIGG bleaching team which recently won national championship.

The one hundred and first annual meeting of the Negroes Interested in Going Grey (NIGG) was held in room 007 of the Howard University Administration Building. Attendance seemed to be at an all time high as the NIGGers shuffled into the meeting room.

After conducting the group in a rousing chorus of "Charlie, Thanks for Letting Us Kiss Your Hand," President Thomas (affectionately called "uncle" by the members) called the meeting to order. Vice President James Crow reviewed the accomplishments of NIGG over the past year. With little effort, they were able to have EBONY magazine voted "The Whitest Black publication in the nation." The NIGG team took first place in the international hair straightening and bleaching competition. One NIGGER set a milestone by bleaching herself completely out of existence. Wig and pink Cadillac sales were at all-time high. Everyone agreed that it had been a successful year.

For lunch, the white butlers served chitterling hors d'oeuvres, pigs feet under glass and watermelon a la mode. Three members had to be removed from the dining hall because they were caught eating with their fingers.

After lunch, President Thomas re-opened the meeting by suggesting that the organization initiate an all-out campaign to have congress allot them a piece of land near Canada in which to set up their own state. He felt that after one hundred and one years of non-service, non-commitment and non-agitation, NIGGers deserved a reward. They were tired of making believe they weren't making believe. They wanted to live away from their own people. And besides, everyone knows that since

Faculty And Chemists Distribute LSD Drug

by Tommie Myles

Authorities have reported that key personnel in the Howard University Humanities department have conspired with certain clandestine and unsavory elements of the Chemistry department in order to produce and distribute among the student body massive doses of mescaline, LSD and other mind-expanding drugs. It is reported that the first batch produced was entirely consumed by conservative faculty members at the urging of some of their more liberal peers.

The expectation is that this will usher them into the exotic realm of pure thought, modern logic, administrative competence and human understanding. Asked to verify the accuracy of these charges, some faculty members admit that there may be some among them who have taken such bold and progressive steps to improve the student-teacher relationship. However, none of the faculty was willing to include himself among the group.

The greatest fear is that some of these potentially dangerous drugs may have been distributed among certain students who are "not ready." Users of the drugs report that even the most minute quantity in the hands of academically irresponsible students produced dire effects. It causes, theretofore unlearned students to quote from GULLIVER'S TRAVELS, put forth arguments supporting the war in Vietnam, and sail off into long dialogues on the balance of payments deficit as related to neo-colonialism and the efficacy of non-violence.

An unimpeachable source among the faculty disclosed that the administration was keeping close tabs on the problem and was ready at a moment's notice to issue an administrative directive that all instructors would be required to take with their daily meals LSD and other mind-expanding drugs should the students intake become so great as to threaten the intellectual primacy of the faculty. The administration is determined that when the students sail off into the noosphere, the faculty will be one noosphere ahead of them.

There is an ominous rumor circulating that some vindictive and disgruntled chemistry students plan to infiltrate some DDT capsules among the mescaline and LSD. They feel that the DDT will exterminate those lousy instructors responsible for their D- averages.

President Removes Dean From Post; Athletic Scholarships Begin Today

by Yogi

All was quiet outside the Howard University administration building last night when suddenly a loud crash shattered the silence. Fire alarms sounded even louder and then eyewitnesses were treated to a startling scene as they saw Dean Frank Snowden stagger out of the elevator screaming, "I've been framed by a bunch of pseudo-intellects."

This reporter quickly contacted the HILLTOP photographer and great speed was the only thing that allowed us to dig up the facts.

According to the University Public Misinformation Office, the evening's events went as follows:

As a result of last week's Athletic Symposium at which he was the target of thousands of students, Dean Snowden decided to make an emergency report to his superior, acting President Wormley. The Dean, who received numerous threats after the program, was reportedly confident that the President would side with him and make a history-making speech in Cramton Auditorium charging students with irresponsibility and allowing themselves to be overcome by Communism.

On entering Dr. Wormley's office, Snowden is said to have declared in a loud, clear voice, "The rabble rousers are at it again and this time it's not Academic Freedom, but a trite thing called athletics. You'd never believe it but they actually want money to be spent to lure top athletes to Howard, money that could be spent on Greek literature and educational trips to Yale and Harvard. But that's not all. Would you believe that they are even thinking of asking alumni to pressure us into providing the funds? Really, it's getting out of hand and I'm here to let YOU know that as long as I'm the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, our standards will never drop so low as to allow brawny weightlifters and gorilla-type football stars to tarnish our reputable image."

According to our source of information, the President calmly began to answer the excited Dean.

"First of all Dean Snowden I must say that your attitude frightens me and makes me wonder who is who at this University. Also, I take exception to your calling my students irresponsible and Communists. Now then, the problem.

"I've been serving as Vice-President of this institution long enough to know exactly what the situation is concerning athletics. I've also been here long enough to know your attitude toward students in general and athletics in particular and frankly I can't understand your way of thinking."

At this point the Dean is said to have partially collapsed in a state of shock.

"As I was saying, your views on athletics, including the points about a sound mind and a sound body, are completely outdated. Don't you realize that athletics will always be a prime factor in the American way of life and that no matter what people of your type do and say about the matter, athletics and athletes are here to stay. And that includes Howard University, Dean Snowden."

The Dean then completely collapsed but was brought back to earth when Dr. Wormley quietly said, "And since you have stated your disposition, I have no other alternative but to remove you from the post of Dean of Liberal Arts."

What ensued had not been cleared up at press time but it is known that Dean Snowden did appear very shaken as he left the elevator of the building. It is also known that Dr. Wormley made a final statement which reads as follows:

"For years I have waited to take advantage of the power that lies in the post of President of this University. Thanks to some intricate planning carried out by the United Nations and alumni, I am proud to say that I'm now in that position. Therefore, let it be known throughout the land that as of this day, April 1, 1966, Howard University will award athletic scholarships to any student with a 3.5 average, a family income of less than $500 a year and, finally, a recommendation from the former Dean of Liberal Arts, Frank M. Snowden, Jr."

Howard Heroes Drafted by Professionals

by Ewart Black

According to the University's director of Public Relations, Mr. Ernie Badman, four Howard athletes have been drafted by professional teams in the following sports: basketball, Aaron Shingler; football, Zellie Dow; wrestling, Les Johnson; and soccer-Nixon Asomani.

Shingler, who recently completed a glorious season scoring over 1,000 points, has become a member of the Baltimore Bullets and was reportedly signed for $80,000 along with a bonus including a Toronado. A spokesman for the Bullets told the HILLTOP last night that with the present controversy over the large number of Negro players in NBA games, his organization had decided to snatch all the colored talent they could get their hands on.

A Bullets scout had been watching Shink in action last season and is of the opinion that the player's great bulk will make a star of him in the near future. He will play at the guard position in view of his excellent dribbling attributes.

The New York Jets outbid the Cleveland Browns to put their stamp on Zellie Dow, Howard's flashy grid star. Dow is said to have put pen to paper for a fantastic sum of $500,000 for three years. The Cleveland Browns who were known to have had their eyes on the senior, stopped at the $480,000 mark when their leading player Jim Brown let it be known that although he was quite aware of the talent which Dow possesses, he would not be prepared to accept less coins. The Browns' front office quickly reacted and the Jets claimed the Bison stand-out.

Wrestler Les Johnson has decided to quit the classroom in view of the $30,000 offer given him by T.V. Wrestling Inc., a body dedicated to the perpetuation of unrealistic wrestling on television. The Toledo, Ohio, product, who was a Math major, told the HILLTOP that "money means more to me right now so I was forced to take the offer."

When reminded that he was quoted in a past issue of this newspaper as saying that the brand of wrestling seen on television was no good, the broadshouldered six-footer replied, "That was only a gimmick. I'm fully aware of the scientific element which T.V. wrestling entails, but at that time nobody recognized my talent. Now, I'm a star." His first bout will take place on April 1, 1967 in the main gym.

The fourth Bison athlete to fall victim to the professional game was soccer wizard Nixon Asomani, a Ghanaian student who has become the property of a team called the Nkrumah Exiles who paid about $68,000 for his services. The team is composed of leading Ghanaian political figures including deposed leader Kwame Nkrumah who is said to rely on the Premier of Guinea for financial assistance for the upkeep of the squad. Asomani will be awarded the rank of commander in his first encounter which is slated for next week when his team will be up against the Rhodesian Rebels led by forward Ian Smith. The clash is expected to produce many thrills in the battle of colorsupremacy.

All systems are go for the athletes who are now waiting for the University to approve their clubs' moral standards. Meanwhile, Dr. Sammy Barnes was found lying across his desk in the physical education building smoking a cigar and quietly whispering into the telephone, "Yes, I do want a cut on every one of them. After all, it was MY program that showed them the light."

good cheer!

Heads turn. Whisperings. "Who's that strangely fascinating student with the arch smile. And what's in that curious green bottle that's making such a racket?"

And you've arrived! The distinctive taste and ebullient character of Sprite has set you apart.
You're somebody, uh...uh, whoever-you-are.

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

The Women's Department of Physical Education has announced that the winning team in their basketball tournament will throw out a challenge to the men's varsity squad. Mrs. Maryrose Allen, coach of the women's five, is reportedly preparing her team with morning runs around the reservoir.

Coach Tom Hart, track mentor, was reported in fair condition in D. C. General Hospital last night. The 88 year-old associate professor is said to have suffered from a vicious attack of arthritis when his entire track squad turned up for practice on Wednesday.

The Inter-Fraternity Council decided at the last meeting that as of September, 1967, no Greeks would compete in intra-mural sports. It is believed that the decision was based on an amendment in their constitution which states that "Greeks, in view of their spasmodic residence on this campus and in view of their poor record in past performances, shall not mingle athletically with any non-Greek organization."

Former Dodger great Jackie Robinson has signed a contract to coach the Bison baseball squad. According to the Director of Athletics, Dr. Samuel Barnes, Robinson finalized plans last week after hearing of the department's problem with Coach Tillman Sease who refused to coach the baseballers while his football team was in spring training.
